From the Pastor's Pen

April is a full month at St. John Lutheran Church. It begins with Holy Week, the most important week of the entire year. Palm Sunday falls on April 2 this year. On Palm Sunday, the crowd welcomed our Lord into Jerusalem and hailed Him as a King. We recreate that moment in worship, processing into the Sanctuary with palm branches held high and "Hosanna!" on our lips. Tuesday, April 4, is a special opportunity to celebrate Christ as the Passover Lamb. We've invited Jews for Jesus to give a special presentation called "Christ and the Passover." Michelle and I attended it last year and were amazed by all the connections between the Passover Seder and the Last Supper. We celebrate that Last Supper on Maundy Thursday, April 6, the only day of the year when we receive Communion around the altar. Then the altar is stripped in preparation for Good Friday the next day, April 7. On this good day when Jesus died for the sins of the world, we'll hear His words from the Cross and sing His praise in hymns. The following day we welcome the children of the community to our church for our annual Easter Eggstravaganza. Then on Sunday, April 9, we celebrate Easter Sunday and Christ's Resurrection from the dead! I've got a good Gospel sermon outlined and ready to go. Invite your family and friends!

Holy Week is the most important week of the year, and a very busy week for us. The rest of April is full, too. On April 16, we'll welcome a scholarship student and celebrate a baby. Luke Beaver is a student at the North American Lutheran Seminary and the first recipient of our St. John Lutheran Legacy Endowment Fund scholarship. Luke will preach at all three services that Sunday and share his story of faith.

Then after the Late Service, all are invited to the Family Life Center for a baby shower for Nella and Justin Baker. Share the joy with the Bakers and help them get ready to welcome God's gift into their life.

The Sunday after that is Confirmation, April 23. Close to a dozen of our young people (including my son, Jonny!) will stand before the congregation at the Late Service and confirm their faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior.

The final weekend of the month brings the Wild Game Dinner on April 29. It's been a few years, but the Wild Game Dinner is back bigger than ever. Come celebrate its return, enjoy delicious food, share in the fellowship, and generously support local and international charities. See you there!

- Pastor Eric Waters

THE VICAR’S CORNER

It’s done (almost) – as of March 10, I’m officially approved for ordination.

Approval for ordination is the tail end of a five-step process of candidacy. You might find it interesting just how the candidacy process works in the NALC.

Candidacy is the process through which a layperson becomes ordained in the NALC. There are essentially five steps: 1) Entrance, 2) Endorsement, 3) Completion of a Master of Divinity, 4) Approval, and 5) Ordination.

First, the Candidacy Committee evaluates whether a layperson should begin the process of candidacy – this is the entrance step, and it involves a psychiatric evaluation, a series of essays, and an interview. Concurrent with this step is beginning seminary, where the layperson begins to learn foundations for Lutheran theology, Biblical studies and preaching, church history, pastoral counseling, and the like. Once the layperson has achieved sufficient study (either completion of the M. Div. or one year of studies remaining), the candidate is invited out for a second interview, to determine whether the layperson should be endorsed for a pastoral internship (to be a vicar). With each of the interviews comes a new set of essay questions, always with some variation on this question: What do you believe about the Bible as the Word of God? (Hint: the committee is looking to make sure candidates in the NALC view the Bible as authoritative and as God’s honest-to-goodness Word.) When a candidate is endorsed, a process of matching a candidate with a church site takes place to find a suitable and amenable pastoral internship (both for the vicar and the church). Towards the end of the internship, the layperson is again invited for the approval interview.

My approval interview took place on March 7. For this step, I submitted a sermon and responses to three essay questions: How do you understand Scripture as the word of God? Describe the four core values of the NALC in light of the ordination vows. Describe what the emphasis of the NALC on the Great Commission would look like on the congregational level. (Unsurprisingly, I might have gone a bit longer than the recommended 20 pages, double-spaced.) I chose my Go and Tell: Peter’s Story sermon because the congregation here overwhelmingly resonated with it – folks really could see themselves as Peters, returning again and again to the faith. And, I thought it important that those evaluating me for ministry have a grasp on my story.

Serendipitously, my sending pastor, Evan McClanahan from First Lutheran Church in Houston (where I first became a member of the Lutheran church) was the chairperson of my approval panel. The interview itself was relatively painless and enjoyable—by this point in the process, the committee has likely already weeded out candidates who are unprepared or unqualified for pastoral ministry—consisting more of questions of how I might approach ministry, rather than whether I should do ministry. The committee recommended that I (as well as my fellow pastoral interns) be approved for ordination, and this decision was ratified by the executive committee with an official date-stamp of March 10.

Thus begins my last and final step, which is to enter the call process. This is a prayer and Spirit-filled process, whereby I seek to be called by a particular church, one in which we are mutually joined, pastor together with flock. And so, I ask that you pray for me, Nella, and our little one, that we would be called by a church for our first call, that I may begin Word and Sacrament ministry.

St. John has been integral to my call. The support, encouragement, and gifts that St. John has provided and continues to provide along the way have made this a wonderful pastoral internship. In particular, Eric Waters has been a faithful, shrewd, and even-keeled mentor, making the internship clear with straightforward goals. Mariola Bergquist has been a wonderful associate with which to do pastoral visits and from which to learn from her many years of pastoral ministry. Mike Miller and the Intern Committee he has chaired proved themselves a valuable resource. The Church Staff, with whom I weekday-daily work, are welcoming, enjoyable, and good-natured. Nella and I have very much appreciated being a part of the youth on Wednesdays under the leadership of both Matt Olson and Mark Lynn. We have enjoyed getting to know the council and the congregation and we owe the Canasta crowd a special shoutout for keeping us fed and feeding us fun.

SUNDAY mornings 9:30am

Be strengthened in knowing the evidence and the arguments for the truth of Christianity. If you don't believe, be a part of this series before you dismiss it. On Sundays, April 16 and 23 we will go through part I and then part II of the film "The Case for Christ." Lee Strobel, the former legal editor of the Chicago Tribune, draws upon his investigative skills in this compelling film that follows his two-year investigation of the Bible and the life of Jesus Christ. Topics include: The historical accuracy of the Gospels, the personal claims of Jesus, and His resurrection from the dead.

We will watch approximately 35 minutes of the film each of the two Sundays thus leaving space for discussion.

Following our same format, on April 30 we will start the film The Case for Faith. In this powerful biblical apologetic, Lee Strobel tackles two of the most emotional questions posed about Christianity: "Why is Jesus the only way to God?" and, "How could a loving God exist if there is evil and suffering in the world?"

We will follow this with The Case for a Creator. Does contemporary scientific evidence point toward or away from a supernatural Creator? Featuring interviews with scientists and scholars from a wide range of disciplines, this remarkable film traces Strobel's own journey from spiritual skepticism to profound faith.

CHURCH NEWS and UPCOMING EVENTS

Congregational Work Day April 1, 10am - 2:30pm

Come join us for some spring cleaning and landscaping at the church! We plan to polish the pews and window sills, clean out gutters, blow out AC enclosures, pressure wash, do some light trimming outside, and possibly mulching. All are welcome!

Special Presentation April 4, 6:30pm

Join us to hear a dynamic, inspiring presentation on how Jesus is found in every aspect of the Jewish Passover meal. Karol Joseph, of Jews for Jesus, will make our Holy Week observance come alive by reminding us of how beautifully the Scriptures point to Jesus throughout the entire Old Testament. Pastor Waters and Michelle attended this presentation last year and are happy we can host it at St. John.

This event will encourage your faith and deepen your understanding of God's amazing grace.

Guest Preacher Luke Beaver, St. John's Scholar April 16

St. John's first scholarship recipient, Luke Beaver, will preach at all three services on April 16.
